1. The first part of the paper is devoted to a general discussion of the problem. It is shown that the problem is of great importance in the theory of the differential equations of the second order.
The second part of the paper is devoted to a detailed study of the problem. It is shown that the problem is of great importance in the theory
of the differential equations of the second order.
The third part of the paper is devoted to a detailed study of the problem. It is shown that the problem is of great importance in the theory
of the differential equations of the second order.

1. The first part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the theoretical aspects of the problem. It is shown that the problem is equivalent to a problem in the theory of differential equations. The main result of this part is the theorem that the problem has a unique solution.
2. The second part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the numerical aspects of the problem. It is shown that the problem can be solved by the method of finite differences.
The main result of this part is the theorem that the method of finite differences converges to the exact solution.
3. The third part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the practical aspects of the problem. It is shown that the problem can be solved by the method of finite differences.
The main result of this part is the theorem that the method of finite differences converges to the exact solution.

Handwritten text in a script, likely Devanagari, covering the main body of the page. The text is arranged in approximately 10 horizontal lines. The script is cursive and somewhat faded, typical of older handwritten documents. The first line appears to start with a small symbol or character, possibly a religious or administrative marker. The text continues across the page with varying line lengths and some visible ink bleed-through from the reverse side.

Handwritten text at the bottom of the page, continuing the script from the main body. It appears to be a concluding line or a separate section, possibly a signature or a date. The text is less dense than the main body and is positioned near the bottom edge of the document.

[The following text is extremely faded and largely illegible due to low contrast and scan quality.]
